Repair, Restoration and a New Creation: The Season of Easter

During Lent this year we worked to be agents of repair and restoration as we approached the cross and the promise of the empty tomb. On April 5, Easter Sunday, we will celebrate Christ's victory over death. For the next seven weeks until Pentecost on May 24, we will observe the season of Easter and our call to be a people of embodied personal, communal and cosmic hope.

The scriptures we hear in this season focus on Jesus appearing to his disciples and stress the continuity between the risen Christ and the crucified Lord. They ground our future hope and mission in the actions of Christ and prepare us for the birth of the church at Pentecost through the work of the Holy Spirit. Because Christ is raised, we are invited into that renewal—living with resurrection hope, practicing mercy and justice, caring for creation, and embodying reconciliation.

We will celebrate the season of Easter with some very special worship services and opportunities to be people of embodied hope in a world seeking the Good News of the Gospel.

April 5: Easter Sunday: Worship service at 10:00 a.m. in the Sanctuary or online. The service will include communion and special music from a Brass Quintet, Handbell Choir and Chancel Choir and a singing of the Hallelujah Chorus. You are invited to stay for Easter brunch following the service hosted by our Parish Life Committee.

April 12: Youth Sunday: Our youth have created and will lead a worship service based on The Road to Emmaus scripture passage in Luke 24. Graduating senior Zach Nawyn-Hellinga will be preaching. Following worship, we will gather across ages and paint landscape stones that will line our Prayer Path.

April 19: Associate Pastor Candidate. The Associate Pastor Candidate called by the APNC will preach and lead worship, followed by a Congregational Meeting to approve the call and terms of call. See the article from the APNC on page 2 for more information. And note that the Green Team-led Earth Care service will be moved to a later date this spring.

Saturday April 25: National Faith + Climate Action Forum. As an Earth Care congregation, we are delighted to host this event for the greater Lansing community for the second year. More information can be found on page 8.

May this Easter be a season of renewal as we live into the promise that death and sin do not have the last word; that because Christ lives, we live as new creations, freed to love and serve the world.

Pastor Lisa

A Message from the APNC

It is with great excitement that the Associate Pastor Nominating Committee shares that a candidate for the Associate Pastor position has been selected for your review. We are thrilled to invite you to their candidating weekend, where you will have an opportunity to meet the candidate and their family on Saturday, April 18 and hear the candidate preach on Sunday, April 19 prior to the Session-called congregational meeting after church, when voting by paper ballot will take place. If the congregation agrees with the APNC that this is the right candidate for PCO, we will officially welcome the candidate and their family to our congregation after the congregational meeting with cake and coffee, along with celebrating our April birthdays!

This has been a long process and we appreciate your continued patience and prayers as the APNC and candidate discerned God's desires for our paths in this world. The APNC never doubted that God knew who was best for PCO, and that the right candidate was out there for us, and that we were the right congregation for this candidate. We are thrilled to present them to you April 18-19. There will be a church-wide Meet and Greet with the Associate Pastor and family on Saturday, April 18 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m, and a Youth and Family Meet and Greet with the Associate Pastor Candidate and family on Sunday, April 19 from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m.

With gratitude and service,

APNC (Candy Boldrey, Brett Cone, Laurin Gierman, Jerri Gillette, Zachary Krawczyk, Zach Nawyn-Hellinga)

From the Family of Tom Bobay

Thank you for your prayers, your kind words of sympathy, your hugs, and the texts and cards you sent following Tom's death. I have often expressed to friends and family that I have no idea what people do without a strong faith community to share life with. I have felt your arms around me for years and have leaned on many of you for comfort and encouragement.

The Memorial Service was a witness to our faith and Pastor Lisa was able to articulate the blessing Tom has been in the life of his friends and family through shared stories. The hymns were some of Tom's favorites. The service was enjoyed by those who couldn't be there because Jacob was making it happen.

The reception following the service was beautifully decorated, the food was delicious, and the kitchen was full of hard-working Deacons making sure all went smoothly. Edward was helpful in so many ways, making sure all went as planned.

We appreciate all of you and all you did to make this time special for our family.

With much love ,

Jane, Heather, Jessica, Angela, Gwen, Kendall and Grant

Handbells Prepare for Silver Anniversary

The PCO Handbell Choir is planning a celebration for Sunday, May 3. All former members of the choir are invited. We would like to recognize all the hands who have rung the bells through the years as we celebrate the 25th Anniversary of the Bell Choir.

If you are a former member of the bell choir, please join us on Sunday, May 3 for a special worship service featuring the PCO Handbell Choir. And please share this information with others you know who were ringers.

Dinner in My Home: Sunday May 3, 2026 @ 5 p.m.

Parish Life is offering the popular Dinner in My Home on Sunday May 3. If you are unfamiliar with this event, members and PCO friends gather in small groups to share a meal in someone's home. The host provides the main dish and the guests provide the sides. This event is for anyone: singles, couples, or families.

Dinner in My Home participants universally report what fun they had with the fellowship and how much they appreciated the time to get to know others on a deeper level. If you've participated in this event before, you know this! If you haven't participated in this event before, you should seriously consider signing up! You can do that 2 ways: 1) find the paper form on the Fellowship Hall Kiosk, fill it out and drop it in the envelope (also on the Kiosk) or 2) signup on line at the PCO website.

Do you have food allergies or restrictions? Let's accommodate them! Need a ride or have other physical limitations? Let us know and we can help you! Bottom line: if you like to eat, share conversation and friendship, signup! Questions? Call or text Jerri (517-331-0250). Deadline for signing up is Sunday, April 19th so don't miss this event! After you sign up, you should receive a phone call or email from Jerri by April 27th with your home assignment.

The History of Handbells at PCO

In 2000, two active members of PCO died quite suddenly. One was Dwight Schwartz on March 17 and the other, Paul Shutt on April 24. Their two widows, both with music degrees, thought it would be a good use of Memorial gifts to purchase a three-octave set of handbells for the church. Neither of them had ever played handbells or had any experience with them. A great deal of interest was generated, and four handbell choirs were formed. Vickie Unferth directed a youth choir. Three adult choirs were directed by Wilma Schwartz, Irene Shutt, and the choir director.

Wilma and Irene attended many conferences, conventions, and workshops to learn as much as they could about ringing handbells. On Easter, 2001, our handbells played in church for the very first time! Most everyone was a first-time bell ringer, and we played easy level 1 music. We had experienced musicians and beginners who didn't read music learning together. A favorite picture from a later year, I think 2018, was of Beverly Ferguson, age 94, and Simon Shutt Irene's grandson, age 9. They were both ringing bells and had arms around each other!

The fourth octave of handbells were purchased later to remember Glen Larson. He and Bonnie were active bell ringers till their deaths. The hand chimes were gifted in part by Irene Shutt and Wilma Schwartz. The fifth octave of handbells were purchased by gifts of the then current members of the handbell choir and the church. An extra bell (C#5) was purchased by Beth Layhe in remembrance of Dave Layhe.

Both ringers and directors have always been volunteers. It is a love offering to the church. This is the 25th year of ringing and on May 3 PCO will celebrate that. We now play Level 3 and 4 music and have developed into a close group of friends and support for each other.

The main goal is for the handbells to play at least once a month for worship services. Some activities we have had through the years include: 1. Play each year for Lessons and Carols and the Collage Concert which are part of the Doemel Series. 2. Planned, hosted, and paid for a wedding for Vicki Unferth and Boris Pritychenko, providing music (bells, organ, and singing), cake and small reception, wedding gift of a night at English Inn, and even a rehearsal dinner with two weeks' notice. 3. Played concerts for Dobie Road and Timber Ridge retirement homes,

This month, the PCO Library celebrates Earth Day and We Need Diverse Books Day. Look for two displays featuring books that honor our commitments to earth care and diversity.

We also present the newest additions to our collection (all quotations are from the publishers):

The Strategically Small Church: Intimate, Nimble, Authentic, and Effective by Brandon J. O’Brien “O’Brien explains that the smaller church is not a problem to solve but a strategic advantage that can be leveraged for effective ministry.”

Earthbound: God at the Intersection of Climate and Justice by Grace Ji-Sun Kim “Invites readers to embrace a radical theology of relationship – one that recognizes our responsibility to each other, to all living systems, and to the intricate web of life that sustains us.”

In Guns We Trust: The Unholy Trinity of White Evangelicals, Politics, and Firearms by William J. Kole “In this unsettling investigation into white evangelicals’ fusion of the gospel and guns, veteran journalist William Kole exposes how some Christians are standing in the way of reasonable restrictions on firearms – and how it makes us all less safe.”

Damned Whiteness: How White Christian Allies Failed the Black Freedom Movement by David F. Evans “Offers an unflinching history of white-led efforts at interracial organizing gone astray. Evans reveals how religious white progressives inherited strategies that remained disconnected from the ideas and actions of Black communities. He offers a way out of this legacy, and into a future where freedom is possible.”

Why Christians Should Be Leftists by Phil Christman “The Sermon on the Mount offers a rousing call to political solidarity – if only we have ears to hear it.”

In recognition of our Jewish neighbors at this time of Passover and Easter, we offer these three new books: Judaism: A Guide for Christians by Tzvi Novick “An innovative introduction to Judaism and the Jewish people for Christian readers.”

White Bird: A Wonder Story by R.J. Palacio “A young Jewish girl is hidden by a family in a Nazi-occupied French village during the Holocaust. Palacio’s graphic novel debut is an unforgettable story about the power of kindness and unrelenting courage in a time of war.”

Sharing Shalom by Danielle Sharkin “A girl’s community joins hands to fight intolerance in this richly illustrated book that sings with hope for young readers.”

Thank you for visiting the PCO Library. We hope that you will borrow one of these new books in April.

Policy Report by Ellen Hoekstra

Members will be pleased to know that five PCO members took part in the faith-based Advocacy Day on Food Insecurity on March 18. The message they delivered to their own state senators and representatives was to ask them to continue funding state food programs, including Michigan’s seven food banks, at current levels, despite the state’s $1.1 billion shortfall in revenue. Feed the hungry!

In both chambers, lawmakers are working on next year’s state budget, with hearings starting in subcommittees of the two Appropriations Committees. One issue linked to the school aid part of the budget is funding for K-5 teachers to be trained in “the science of reading.” Other states, including Mississippi, have seen significant improvement in students’ reading scores as a result of this professional development. On another K-12 issue, proponents of the ballot proposal to increase state income taxes on the very wealthy have decided to switch their timing from the upcoming election to the 2028 ballot, a presidential election year, with higher anticipated voter turn-out.

The attack on Temple Israel has drawn heightened attention to firearm laws. The red flag law (extreme risk protection orders) has seen an increase of 31% in requests from 2024, although the law wasn’t in effect for all of its first year. 517 requests were filed in 2025. Also, the Governor has announced that nearly 950 illegal guns have been taken off the streets as a result of “Operation Safe Neighborhoods.”

On other issues:

- So far, there have been 3 pediatric deaths from flu in Michigan, with 26.7 percent of residents vaccinated, well below “herd immunity”. The first Michigan case of the extremely communicable disease, measles, was reported in Ypsilanti.
- State prisons are close to capacity, largely due to longer sentences. Currently, 65% of inmates are sentenced to 10 years or longer.
- This month federal funding from the Superfund was announced to address the toxic plume under Ann Arbor, which has contaminated 120 wells and caused concerns for the city water system.
- Studies have suggested that social media usage can lead to depression and substance abuse among kids. State legislation would address the issues of addictive algorithms and age verification to view adult content. However, tech companies have warned of lawsuits if such bills are enacted.

BOOK NOOK

By Ron Dorr

The All of It

by Jeannette Haien

Novelist Ann Patchett is the co-owner of Parnassus, an independent bookstore in Nashville, Tennessee. The store sells more copies of Jeannette Haien's short novel, The All of It, than any other book. Patchett first read the 1986 novel in 2010.

Like the book of Mark, The All of It propelled Patchett forward, wanting to know how the story would end. A Catholic priest in western Ireland thinks that a woman in his parish has sinned and needs to confess. The woman does not want to confess to something that circumstances have played upon her. She asks the priest to hear her out as she tells her story from beginning to end.

This is the tension in The All of It, a "wondrous, complex moral tale," according to Bill Moyers. The story starts with a Catholic priest the day after the burial of Kevin Dennehy. Father Declan de Loughry has gone fishing not to catch any salmon, I believe, but to clear his mind, to ponder the events of the past week, and to consider what the future holds for him as well as for the partner of Kevin, Enda.

The "all of it" is the story that Enda Dennehy tells her priest. It is a tale of two young people fleeing from absent, abusive elders, working as they wind their way toward Mayo County in Ireland, finding a house and cattle-fold to which they hymn their praise, and living in delight with nature, with work well done, and with each other. "You've netted me with your telling," Father Declan says to Enda at one point, and the same was true for me. The dialogue is leisurely but sure, suspenseful, filled with wonder, surprise, and beauty. Both the teller and the listener are vulnerable, they make mistakes and misunderstand one another, and yet they carry the conversation to its end.

The "all of it" is also persons who see life fleeing from them, perhaps "in an unequal chase," unless they work out the "wonders of impossibility." It is characters who do escape "so many people forever at [their] elbow," who have "need of each other," and who realize that authentic conversation is a form of love. Close and confiding conversation, however, can also hurt. The "all of it" includes this shock of recognition: "To work one's imagination on someone else is evil." By the end of the story, Father Declan is the one saying, "Forgive me if you can."

Thematically, the "all of it" is grace and forgiveness and the possibility to the priest that "there are some circumstances in life that are not of God's making" and "that must surprise even God." It is the trinity of time—past and present and future intertwined to temper the sadness of life. "One thing I've learned, Father—that in this life it's best to keep the then and the now and the wants to be as close together in your thoughts as you can. It's when you let gaps creep in, when you separate out the intervals and dwell on them, that you can't bear the sorrow." And the "all of it" is angler and fish—as metaphors for the human community—"straining in their apartness, fatefully together."

Part of the beauty in this novel is the prose. Haien can write a 39-word obituary as chapter seven and an 87-page recollection as chapter nine, a one-word sentence, "Do," and a 320-word sentence about fishing, all with equal ease. Of a house, she writes, "The stones had the winter cold stored up in them." Of people, she writes: "A woman always remembers her first compliment." Kevin "gave me the loveliest smile, the kind, you know, that lives with you." Enda "brought her hands together in a cupping way as if she were holding something fragile and alive." An employer never "set himself up in a way that'd make a person feel small," yet never gave something for nothing, either. And of a corpse, Haien writes: "In the brighter light, Kevin's face shone whiter, moon-like, yondered truly."

Author and pianist
Jeannette Haien

Why did this accomplished pianist and piano teacher, write The All of It? "I had to write it. I thought I had something to say." Indeed she did. This is a lovely, lovely, lovely book.
